Where particular varieties are ordered, age, size, etc., it should be stated whether we are at liberty to substitute or not; when not stated we take it for granted we are at liberty to substitute, except in orders for fruit trees for commercial orchards. If the selection of varieties is left entirely to us, we will endeavor to send the best varieties only.

COMMON SENSE TALKS.

Never plant over two inches deeper than the trees were in the Nursery.

Avoid exposing roots to the air in freezing weather.

Never allow them to lay out in the sun all day; its easier to keep a wet sack over the roots than to replace dead trees.

In hot weather no plant should be watered between 9 a. m. and 4 p. m.

The old saying, "A prevention is worth a dozen cures," holds good with plants as with other diseases.

TO PLANT ORCHARDS.

If you have set stakes correctly, its easy to plant a tree exactly where the stake set by using a planting board, made about five feet long, four inches wide, one inch thick, a U shaped notch cut in edge about center of board and two holes bored at each end with pegs to pass through into the soil. To operate, place board so that stake sets in U notch, place pegs through end holes, swing one end of board out of the way, dig hole for the tree, place tree in notch, fill in top soil around roots, then fill hole level, leaving three or four inches of top soil loose.

Don't believe everything an agent tells you; he may have something good, but pay him no more than three times the price we charge for the same size, age and variety.
